In corporate dominoes, corporate employees learn such things a deductive reasoning, probability analysis, critical decision making ability, and improved recall ability. They also learn team building, obtain improve social skills, self esteem, pride in company and discipline. The game is also a great source of stress relief. The game helps young children with math as addition, subtraction and multiplication are very much a part of this game. I have taught the game to many elementary school children".

Dominoes players have a habit of bragging about how good they are. It should be a great honor to wear the title as the best domino player in the state of Texas for an entire year.
